

COUNTRY YARNS is an original small scale musical (written, developed, and produced by Entertainment Equities) that brings entertainment to audiences in the “entertainment starved” Outback and regional areas of Australia, where there is limited access to musicals that are usually staged in large city theatres.

The musical is performed by a small touring company of professional musicians, four “name” actors and two guest vocalists / performers – the musical is usually staged outdoors around a simple campfire set, with small tents, as “theatre in the round” – additional tiered scaffold seating can be added for large audiences.

While the campfire set seems simple, it incorporates unseen sophisticated sound and lighting systems (with musicians in one of the tents), and multimedia images (some animated) are projected onto some of the tent exteriors, visually telling the storylines (the “yarns”) – the musical can be staged in any location with premium priced seating (inside some of the tents) and with barbecue style catering, merchandise, and accomodation packages (usually close to a country airport).

The musical’s storyline incorporates some bush poetry and original country music – it’s language is colloquial and colourful in telling the yarns of the main characters and their stories of past and present rural life.
